The Pittaburgh Dispatch of yesterday contained the following:

Hon. George C. Sturgies, of Monongalia county, W. Ya, was at the Seyenth Avenue Hotel yesterday, en route East. Speaking of the failure of his county to vote a subscription for a railroad, he said: "Very much against my advice, there was a proposition tacked on the original one to vote $60,000 toward the building of a narrow guage road from Blacksville toward Morgantown. This, I think, went a long way toward killing the $100,000 subscription for a road up the river. However, we do not despair of success, and in the future not far off we expect to see a road through our county. We have in our county minerals and cereals well worth the developing influences of a road, and we must have it."

Now you see why they played the 'muddle' dodge for a cover—who was it said something about 'deviileh sly, si!"? And he walked off whistling 'Mr. Reiliy."

its Interest to Some Wheeling Investors. Lands Heretofore Reserved by the Government Open to Pre-emp ion, oill was passed on a subject which has lately attracted considerable attention in Wheeling namely the iron and coal lands in Alaban namely the iron and coal lands in Alabama. By the new law these lands are exempted from the Acts of Congress relating to mineral land, and come quently are on the same footing, with a slight exception, as agricultural lands belonging to the public domain, and open to occupation by preemption, under the homestead laws, or by purchase as preacribed by the acts on the subject.

Heretofore, by the Acts of 1872 and '73, none of these lands could be obtained except by purchase at a price not less than $20 per acre, if it lay within fifteen miles of a railroad, and $10 if at a greater distance from a railread. Two railroads, the Memphis & Charleston and the Mobile & Ohio-skirt the coal and fron fields, and hold grants of alternate sections of land for fifteen miles on either side of their lines; so that the operations of this law gave them the monopoly of the mineral deposits. The mineral lands, mary of them, are of little value as mineral lands, some of them will be of great value when additional transportation facilities are secured by the construction of more railmary of them, are of little vatice as inner all lands. Some of them will be of great value when additional transportation facilities are secured by the construction of more rail-roads and the land thus rendered accessible. In others the minerals are not worth mining. It has been the complaint of those interested in the wellare and progress of Alabama that the law only discouraged immigration and retarded the growth and development of the State, as no desirable lands were left for agricultural purposes outside of the section from which the dog-in-the-manger policy of the railroads prevented the acquisition of titles by farmers.

In spite of the fact that similar lands in Missouri, and lands having valuable mineral deposits in Kansas, Nebrasta, Michfigan and other States, had been exempted by special deposits in Kansas, Nebrasta, Michigan and other States, had been exempted by special enactmet from the operation of the general law governing mineral lands, the interested corporations were strong enough to prevent the passage of a similar law in relation to Alabama lands in two successive Congresses. Finally, however, after thorough discussion at the late session, the bill became a law. There are undisposed of in the State 1,637,1250 acres of coal lands and 224,000- acres of iron lands belonging to the Government, and now open to acquisition, after the provisions of the new law are commised with, in the same manner as any other Government as

The prices were fancy, too. You should have heard my Guy'ner swear when he got ma's bill. One funny thing about it, the women were all fully as stuck on Madame as they were on her hair work. Why, you must have noticed something was the matter—look at the changed appearance of the girls, both old and young. Look at the chatisine over in that corner. "by the way, who is she?" "Why, old short eyes, that's Miss L—in ow wonder you didn't know the old girl, though; that Neilleon wavelet and shingled bang would change any one."

Such the young man found was the case. The ladies of the city for the nast two weeks have talked of nothing but hair, hair. Several middle aged ladies are very secluded at present. They are, waiting for their hair toome home—they are having it remodeled. Others are out all the time—they have new hair; beautiful tresses that came from the south of lovely France and the Five Points of New York. It's awful the way they talk; and no young man should go out calling who is not prepared to talk of "becoming elegant, refined, original, artisite conflorar," or bangs, waves, wavelets, etc., a la every actress of any prominence in the land. The Cumberland News says that the new Forty Hours' Devotion.

The annual forty hours devotion is now in progress at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, in the Eighth ward, having commenced Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. Formerly, several years ago, the rule was, that the Blessed Sacrament was exposed for adoration for 40 consecutive hours, but as that arrangement was hardly practicable in a parish, the Holy See granted permission to expose it from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M. daily until the forty hours exposure was accomplished. Father Schleicher, the pastor of the church nas on this occasion secured the assistance of Rev. Father Plus Mayer, Prior of the Order of Carmelites, of Pittsburgh. In the morning's Father Mayer discourses in German, and in the evening in English. Tuesday morning he spoke on the forty hours devotion, its purposes etc. In the evening his subject was "Love of God and our neighbors." Yesterday morning, the "Holy Eucharist" received attention, and last evening he talked on the Vice of Impunity. On each occasion the reverend gentlemen has been listened to with the closest attention by the large audiences that have gathered. Lust night's attendance was very large. Father Mayer is a pleasant, earnest talker, and has made himself very popular. The devotions will be closed Friday morning by Bishop Kain.
